

Privacy Policy

The Collective for Hope places a high priority on protecting our community members' privacy. This privacy policy was created in order to demonstrate The Collective For Hope's commitment to the privacy of our program participants, donors, and website users.

What Personally Identifiable Information is Collected

The Collective for Hope participants, donors, and website users who register for programs, events, and correspondence voluntarily provide us with contact information (such as name and e-mail address). We may use this information for specific, limited purposes. One may always "opt out," either at the time of registration or at any time in the future, if one does not wish to receive our email messages.

How Your Information May Be Used

We use your personal information to provide you with personalized service; to send e-mail alerts to you; to answer your requests; to process your donations; etc. You may choose to opt out at any time, which will cease all communications from us. We may also use your information to track visitors of our website. This lets us see which of our pages are the most popular so we can better serve our users' needs. It also lets us provide aggregate data about our website traffic (not identifying you personally, but showing how many visitors used which features, for example) to outside parties.

Email Privacy

The Collective for Hope does not provide, sell, or rent email addresses to outside entities.

Modifications

The Collective For Hope may amend this privacy policy from time to time; please review it periodically. We maintain the option to modify this privacy policy at any time by electronic notice posted on our website. Your continued use of our website after the date that such notices are posted will be deemed to be your agreement to the changed terms.
